

POSITION AVAILABLE

Alzheimer's Family Services Center, a non-profit leader in the field of dementia care, is seeking an experienced professional to join its executive management team.

SENIOR DIRECTOR OF PROGRAM AND SERVICES

Alzheimer's Family Services Center is seeking a licensed professional with knowledge of the needs of older adults from both a theoretical and practice perspective. The individual in this position is responsible for the agency's education and outreach services and provides executive-level oversight to the adult day health care and caregiver support services. The successful candidate will develop and oversee the implementation of a comprehensive annual education and outreach plan targeting caregivers, at-risk seniors, and health care professionals to enhance community awareness of the agency, knowledge about dementia, and care of affected individuals and their families. The individual will take a lead role in developing and implementing an education-related earned income strategy that supports the agency's mission and offsets costs of providing free services to families in need. In addition, the individual will provide leadership, direction and oversight for program development and innovation in adult day health care, caregiver support, and education services. This position will supervise a team that includes a Director of Adult Day Health Care Services, Director of Clinical Services, and a Manager of Education. A demonstrated ability to communicate and interact effectively and professionally, excellent organizational skills, and high attention to detail required. Excellent written and oral presentation skills, proficiency in Word, Excel, and PowerPoint needed. A Master's degree or above in social work, with specific training in gerontology and experience in adult day services preferred. License required with a minimum of five years of supervisory and management experience.

Alzheimer's Family Services Center is affiliated with the Hoag Neurosciences Institute. Competitive wages and benefits. Salary dependent on experience.
